In consideration of the publication of this article, the author represents that the article is his/her original work. If the article was prepared jointly, the author agrees to inform the co-authors of the terms of this agreement and to obtain their permission to sign on their behalf. The article is submitted only to this Journal, and has not been published before. (If excerpts from copyrighted works are included, the author will obtain written permission from the copyright owners and show credit to the sources in the article.) The author also represents that, to the best of his/her knowledge, the article contains no libelous or unlawful statements and does not infringe on the rights of owners.

The author grants to us or our successors all rights in the article of whatsoever kind of nature, including those now or hereafter protected by Copyright Laws of the United States and all foreign countries, as well as any renewal, extension, or reversion of copyright, now or hereinafter provided, in any country.

Biophysical Society, in turn, grants to the author the following:

1. Proprietary rights other than copyright, such as patent rights.
2. The right to make copies of all or part of the article for the authors use in classroom teaching.
3. The royalty-free right to use, after publication, all or part of the article in any book of which he or she is the author or editor.
4. The right to make copies of the article for internal distribution within the institution which employs the author.
5. The right to use figures and tables from the article, and up to 250 words of text, for any purpose.
6. The right to make oral presentations of material from the article.

All copies made under the above instances are subject to the expressed condition that lawful notice of claim of copyright is given.

In the case of an article prepared under United States Government contract, the U.S. Government may reproduce, royalty-free, all or portions of the article and may authorize others to do so, for noncommercial U.S. Government purposes only.

In all instances where the article is prepared as a "work made for hire" for an employer, the employer(s) of the author(s) retain(s) the right to revise, adapt, prepare derivative works, publish, reprint, reproduce, and distribute the work provided that all such use is for promotion of its business enterprise.

The author will receive no royalty or other monetary compensation for the assignment set forth in this agreement. Please indicate your acceptance of the terms of publication by signing and dating this agreement and returning the form promptly to:
